

Congressional Republicans' Plans To Gut Medicaid and the ACA Would Have Devastating Consequences in Massachusetts

Congressional Republicans have yet to release a budget, but the plans that have been offered and reported so far are a five-alarm fire for American families – especially when it comes to their health care costs. Not only has virtually every Republican budget or fiscal plan over the last decade included repeal of the Affordable Care Act (ACA) and deep cuts to Medicaid, but House Republicans putting together their budget are reportedly drawing heavily on a plan that includes both. And in recent weeks, they've reiterated that both Medicaid, including the ACA's expansion of coverage to low-income adults, and ACA tax credits that help people afford coverage are on the chopping block for cuts.

What's clear is this: extreme MAGA Republicans are trying to make health care more expensive for Massachusetts families, all while pushing for more tax breaks for billionaires.

If Republicans are successful in repealing the Affordable Care Act and gutting Medicaid:

Massachusetts families will have higher health care costs.

- 53,000 Massachusettsans will see higher premiums. 53,000 people in Massachusetts who get coverage through the Affordable Care Act will see their premiums go up by an average of $4,600.
 - For a married couple, age 62, earning $75,000 per year and living in Springfield, repealing just the Biden ACA improvements in the Inflation Reduction Act would increase their premiums by a whopping $10,668 per year.
- At least 975,000 people in Massachusetts with pre-existing health conditions could lose critical protections. Before the ACA, at least 975,000 Massachusettsans with pre-existing health conditions could have been denied coverage or charged more if they tried to buy individual market health insurance. Republican repeal proposals either eliminate these protections outright or find other ways to gut them.
- Up to 568,000 Massachusetts residents could lose protection against catastrophic medical bills. Before the ACA, insurance plans were not required to limit enrollees' total costs, and almost one in five people with employer coverage had no limit on out-of-pocket costs, meaning they were exposed to tens of thousands of dollars in medical bills if they became seriously ill.
- 2.5 million Massachusettsans would be at risk of lifetime benefit caps. Prior to the ACA, more than 2.5 million people in Massachusetts, mostly people with employer coverage, had a lifetime limit on their health insurance benefits, and every year up to 20,000 people hit that cap and saw their benefits exhausted just when they needed them most.
- Families across Massachusetts could lose free preventive care. The ACA requires private health insurers to cover preventive services, like cancer screenings, cholesterol tests, annual check-ups, and contraceptive services, at no cost. In fact, 60% of people with private health insurance use at least one of these services every year. Before the ACA requirements were in place, millions of Americans with health insurance faced cost sharing – sometimes high costs – for preventive services, which is part of why the ACA resulted in increased use of critical preventive care.

Massachusetts residents will lose their health insurance.

- 683,000 people’s health insurance coverage would be at risk. Over 225,000 Massachusettsans have signed up for ACA marketplace coverage for 2023 and over 458,000 Massachusettsans are enrolled in Medicaid expansion coverage available due to the ACA. The total number of people with some form of ACA coverage has risen significantly since 2017, when the Congressional Budget Office estimated the House-passed repeal bill would grow the ranks of the uninsured by 23 million nationwide.
- An additional 1.6 million Massachusetts residents with Medicaid, including children, could lose critical services, or could even lose coverage altogether. Slashing federal funding for Medicaid would force states to make Medicaid eligibility changes that would make it harder to qualify for and enroll in Medicaid coverage. States would also likely consider capping or limiting enrollment, cut critical services, and cut payments rates, making it harder for people with Medicaid to access care.
- Other Republican Medicaid proposals also threaten Massachusetts residents. Attempts to impose failed policies that take Medicaid coverage away from people who can’t meet bureaucratic work reporting requirements would strip coverage from Massachusetts residents. Where these policies were tried, they led nearly 1 in 4 people subject to them to lose Medicaid.
- Massachusettsans could lose access to substance use treatment or mental health care. Across the country, the ACA, especially its expansion of Medicaid, has dramatically expanded access to opioid treatment and other substance use disorder care, including increases in medication assisted treatment prescriptions for opioid and other substance use treatment and improved access to mental health care.
